this beer poured nicely into a unk pilsner glass ( poured a third of a bottle and was able to get my nose in the glass ) appearance : a beautiful orange and red with a chunky white head that left lacing all over the inside of the glass . very clear with fine carbonation . smell : apples . bold , citrus with floral , and sweet malts . this beer has a ton of aroma coming off of it unk the size of this beer . taste : amazing flavors , of fruit , brown sugar sweetness , and a huge hop finish : bitter and unk , but extremely complex . this heavy brew is a great unk in and of itself . mouthfeel : refreshing but still very strong presence . the unk unk above behind this beer - the old unk ale gone unk - is very present in this beer in that it is strong and feels big . unk : medium to low ; this is a slow sipping - next time out of a unk and i will write the notes up on here - after meal beer . you could drink a few of these if it was not for the unk of such a high abv and weight . notes : i love everything this beer is , and have never been let down by lagunitas . this brew has a very unk season ' feel ; particularly the north east , where i live . it 's apple smell mixed with the sweetness brings to mind unk . next time i drink this - in the unk - i will be trying this beer with unk apple and some sharp unk cheese .

poured into new belgium unk glass . pours just over qqq finger of very slight tan head . decent retention with unk lace . color is a dark mahogany copper . aroma : dark roasted malts , chocolate , banana . reminds me a lot like a unk . taste : big roasted malt flavor hits first . then the chocolate and bananas hit with some cloves as well . mouthfeel : smooth and creamy . only a hint of booze shows . medium bodied with a pretty good amount of carbonation . ends with a roasted malt aftertaste . overall , this is one of the better unk i have had , however it reminds me more of a unk . still pretty drinkable .

served in an unk unk doppelbock glass . pours a clear bright unk with very little foamy head . there is a moderate amount of unk , unk lacing . the nose is unk heavy on the dark malts , with bits of figs , brown sugar , molasses , and plums . a slight hint of booziness is also present . the taste unk the brown sugar and molasses , with the figs and malts unk back a bit , and toffee and maple syrup beginning to come through . again , a hint of alcoholic burn is present , but not as powerful as one would expect from such a high abv . the body is pretty hefty , with light carbonation and a fairly smooth feel . still , though , it unk the tongue very unk , but not unk , leaving a very unk drinker behind . despite the abv , this brew 's drinkability stands very high , unk more appropriate for sipping than unk drinking .

had as best of beer unk # qqg pours an opaque warm chocolaty brown with a very thick , unk tan head that sticks around for a while and leaves some unk lacing . aroma is smoky , spicy and malty , with hints of unk and licorice . flavor has a fairly strong but not unpleasant unk note , as well as nutty , spicy , malty , smoky and woody tones . unk texture has a fair amount of body and leaves a subtle fizz and a woody , slightly smoky finish .

appearance was gold , clear , no head , and fizzy . almost looked like champagne . aroma was actually real good . sweet apricot , unk smith apple , almost like a unk wine . taste was unk . i unk a couple of bottles an tried them so if they were skunked , it was unk unk that were bad . there was no real apricot taste , and no sweetness . it tasted like hay but not in the good wheat beer sense , more like dirty hay thats been under the budweiser unk . mouthfeel was thin and carbonated .

drinkability ... well this is the second beer in my long list that i 've actually had to pour out .

poured from a qqq bottle into a unk o pint glass . unk as " winter ale unk unk " a : pours a murky , unk color with some slight unk at the edges when held to the light . qqq finger of creamy , light brown foam unk itself across the top and quickly turns to a thin skim . some light unk of lace are left behind . s : not picking up much more from this but unk and unk barrel . after it came up to temp i did notice some toasted and caramel malt . t : holy crap ! major barrel flavor . one of the most barrel forward beers i 've had in unk . i 'm not unk unk flavor ( which this does have plenty of ) , i 'm unk the flavor of the actual barrel . i actually looked in the bottom of the bottle after it was empty and fully expected to see a unk of charred unk cask sitting there . loads of unk , smoky peat fire , and roasted malt . m : sure it 's dry and bitter but at the same time there 's a unk smoothness that helps unk it together and keeps it from becoming one note . finish lasts for unk . d : i loved how it started off by unk my palate unk then settled down into a mellow smoothness unk by raw barrel , sweet malt , and unk unk . do yourself a unk and make sure to swirl around the yeast sediment and pour it into the glass . you 'll be unk me !

poured into a nonic pint glass ... jet black , unk no highlights around the edges at all , dense tan unk head ... looks great ! a bit of sediment in the bottom of the bottle . bottle read " live ale , keep unk . " the store where i bought it from had it on the shelf at room temp : ( the smell was surprising ... an earthy roasted smell , mixed with day old coffee . also some weird " off " licorice notes . taste was dry at the start , and very dry on the finish . bitter roast notes with a sort of unk . full bodied with appropriate carbonation . i was very excited to try this beer , and i was pretty disappointed . this bottle could be old , or the flavors could be " off " from the room temp unk .

i picked this up on a unk while on a unk trip in unk not much on the label to tell what it was other than a special unk beer . a - slightly hazy reddish brown color with a nice off white head . s - sour cherries , a bit of funk and sour notes . t - taste follows the aroma with hints of caramel , ripe fruit and a unk spicy unk note . m - medium to light bodied , nicely carbonated , crisp dry tart bite unk a unk of abv . d - a unk of flavors unk in a well balanced dry presentation . i kept looking at this bottle thinking , no way this is qqq % . it 's probably the unk to drink qqq % i 've had in a long time . worth a try !

purchased unk from grand unk . it pours a clear light gold with about an inch of foam and some pretty good lacing . light notes of lemon citrus and malt in the smell . the malt shows some nice sweetness with a touch of grain . the taste ... unk , is a very well balanced ; lemon citrus bitterness with sweet malt and light graininess . the hop character is very good but makes this brew special to me is what the malt brings to the table . and at qqq % abv , i am unk impressed ! medium bodied with the carbonation on the light side of medium , i 'm unk the mouth feel and if i had this around my neck of the unk unk , i 'd drink a unk of a lot of it . wonderful brew ! !

the color is almost unk with a slight tint in the head that has a little retention with a lacing that stays nicely . sour wood , apple , unk , and plum are flavors making it more complex . this beer is fruity and then earthy with a slightly sour finish . it 's woody with some unk flavors . the mouthfeel is a little off , it 's harsh and full of carbonation . overall i would n't have another of these particular beers right away .

of plastic . the lemony lactic character unk with the most dominating scent in this brew that is very enjoyable . as it warms , it unk up a light leafy to grassy aspect that is pleasant mixed with some unk and almost a tropical aspect . so deep , unk and unlike anything i have had before yet so unk enjoyable . the taste is tart with a flavor that is what i imagine to be a unk of lemon flavored watery unk unk . there is a faint touch of unk a bit of plastic mixed with a strong yeasty quality and unk . more sips bring out more citrus to fruity lemon flavors that are tart and unk but never get to the point where i would consider it to be sour . the aftertaste is a lingering flavor of plastic mixed with lemon and unk flavoring with yeasty character . as it warms up , it has a light mineral aspect which unk something almost unk about it yet more unk flavor unk as well . this is a light bodied brew that is highly carbonated initially that gets to be more pleasant as the carbonation is unk out . somehow , despite being light bodied , it has a rich and creamy feel . i assume this is due to the unk amount of yeast that is stuck in unk that unk does not drop out no matter how long it is chilled . the alcohol is not evident at all throughout the entire unk . this is a crisp and refreshing brew , very unique and enjoyable experience across the unk . if this was easier to unk i would have a unk of this always on hand during the unk . thanks again unk for the trade !

new pumpkin beer , unk ? i 'll give it a shot . a- unk amber in the pour , qqq off-white unk tan in the glass , moderate lacing , more than expected for sure . lacing is rather thick . s- light , faint grain , a unk of pumpkin spice . mild , not that great . t- lots of spicy molasses , like a ginger unk . herbal and bitter . just a bit of sweet pumpkin in the finish , with more brown sugar . m- weird . pumpkin is dominated by the earthy bitter unk sugar . feels thin in the mouth . o- i 'll burn through this qqq , but it 's not gon na be a unk . better pumpkin beers for the price ( $ qqq ) . this one 's heavy on the spices and it 's hard to find the real pumpkin flavors . make a qqq pumpkin beer , guys . this one 's not up to unk . kind of a harsh unk , but there 's no way this is above average in the unk of pumpkin beers .

. can unk qqq on bottom . i am reviewing this beer because it is the beer my unk has drank ... ever since he got out of the unk after serving more than qqq years . unk a rather mild pour yields qqq , yes qqq fingers of big , bubbly , foamy white head . the body is an unk , unk clear yellow color . bubbles are unk rising to to the top in a slow but regular unk . as the head slowly dies i pour more into my glass , and note that the head , although large , unk in a few minutes , and really is rather weak . has an odd lacing on the top of the glass , but this does n't keep going as i drink , just sits at the top . unk weak . i smell corn , the unk of grain and metal . at least it is n't skunked . unk pretty much follows the nose . lots of corn , a bit of grain , but the metal is a little more unk . unk ever had water ? you know , qqq ? yeah , it 's kinda like that , with a little carbonation . unk overall , this is possibly the worst beer i 've had in my life . i 've only drank a unk of these in the past , because even in my macro brew days , i unk clear of my unk 's beer . the only thing this beer has going for it is the can i picked up has a pretty unk on it . honestly , the warmer it gets , the more i get metal and corn . i believe this will be my last in my unk .

qqq . bottle poured into a chalice . a : deep , dark unk , almost black . the color actually reminds me of unk beer . a finger of caramel foam unk the liquid and unk quickly , leaving very little lacing and a bit of surface cover . s : roasted coffee , chocolate covered cherries , and molasses are the dominant aromas . also definitely unk some of that qqq % alcohol . as it warms , and with the help of a little unk , i sense a bit of unk beer and an unk hint of unk hops . t : the chocolate covered cherries from the aroma become unk covered cherries on the palate . there seems to be so much going on that i 'm having trouble unk anything beyond the chocolate and cherry flavors . i do get subtle hints of tobacco , unk beer , molasses , brown sugar and licorice . m : thick and syrupy , particular as it gets warmer . very creamy and sweet with a perfect amount of roasty bitterness that lingers from one sip to the next . d : not my favorite bell 's brew , but very tasty and interesting . one is definitely enough , but that one takes awhile to get unk you do n't want to unk qqq % ! i have qqq more bottles that i unk to age at unk unk and i 'm very much looking forward to see how batch qqq is drinking qqq , qqq , and qqq years from now .

qqq bottle . batch number qqq poured into weizen glass . tasted in late unk unk qqq very bright and vibrant golden straw color . cloudy with yeast . unk unk head slowly recedes to wispy thin layer , an initial ring of lace up top , but then just unk unk lacing unk . would 've been a lower score , but the unk of the color is really just too appealing ! aroma : fresh banana , clove , hint of citrusy fruit in the back . plus ... cherries ? ! balanced by gentle noble hopping . yeasty bread notes . whiff of phenols . taste : robust weizen flavors , this is basically a sweeter and more intense version of the original . ( a good thing ! ) maybe a touch more bitterness to balance the stronger flavors . light to medium body , smooth upfront with some astringency in back . fizzy but not overdone carbonation , which can be quite refreshing and helps give flavor unk . unk , i 'm unk about unk this is better than the regular unk unk . i suppose the intensity of the flavors and higher abv cut down drinkability ? unk , what am i saying ? i could still drink this all day !

i normally try to make a unk of not going any unk on beer than the unk qqq pack of bud , but when money is tight , sometimes we do what we must . really the only thing i can say about this beer is that its better than natural ice , but not by much . its a bit smoother , without the unk after taste that unk ice has . its not the worst i 've ever had , but if i 'd had a few more bucks to unk , i certainly would have unk them on something else .

a big thanks to unk for opening this up during a unk tasting . it pours a cloudy copper with deep red highlights at the edges . a bone colored head recedes quickly into a nice ring of bubbles around the unk the nose of this beer is exactly what i unk of when i open up an example of my favorite style . it has a nice balance of unk , cherry , oak , and sweet notes . the addition of actual cherries in this beer leave more cherry aroma than i 've had in others but it is a welcome addition . the smell was so inviting i just kept smelling it for several minutes before i unk into the actual liquid . the cherry is definitely present in the taste but it is n't overpowering . the tart and sour notes have are really well integrated with a fair amount of vinegar taste but not too much to label it over the top . my only unk with the flavor is that the cherry flavors and the sourness unk a lot of the base beer and i unk like to have more of the brown ale show through . the mouthfeel is on the lighter side and the present carbonation unk the beer nicely . it is pretty dry which i really like and allows a mouth puckering beer to be drank without much palette unk .

pours a clear golden color with a large white head that hangs around for a very long time . had to pour slowly and unk to avoid foam from unk the glass . heavy lacing is left on the glass . the smell is citrus and lemons . just a light spice note in the aroma . the flavor has a huge citrus and lemon element up front . just a hint of spice and finishes very dry . light body with unk carbonation . i enjoyed this saison as it is more citric and less spicy . i also enjoyed the dry finish .

a friend gave me a qqq pack unk of these , and unk our local unk store now carries them . poured a deep gold with fluffy white head . good head retention but almost no lacing . smell is a light sweet malt , biscuity , with a light hop . taste is very creamy . buttery unk with a light malt and fresh water . toasted flavor in the nose with a bit of unk . hop is very light but is detectable in the mild bitter of the finish . mouthfeel is very light bodied , carbonation is good , smooth not crisp . drinkability is great . i ca n't say that i 'd drink this all day but it 's very easy to drink . the sweetness is n't overbearing to me , like a tripel , but very light . very easy to drink a few of , and unk very well with everything i 've had it with . a great unk beer .
